Records of the Teacher Training College, Carmarthen

GB1953/TTC/

Introduction

Trinity College, Carmarthen was established in 1848 to train Anglican men to teach in elementary schools maintained by the National Society of the Church of England. Its original name was the South Wales and Monmouthshire Training College; it was renamed Trinity College in 1931 following the construction of a new chapel on the College campus.

A detailed history of the College is available: Russell Grigg, History of Trinity College Carmarthen 1848-1998, University of Wales Press, 1998.

This catalogue describes those College records transferred from the Carmarthenshire Record Office to University of Wales Trinity Saint David, Lampeter in 2013. The records have been divided into seven groups: Governance, Administration and Finance, Teaching and Curriculum, Estate, Student Records, College Matters and Student Affairs.

An additional deposit was received by the Roderic Bowen Research Centre in 2017, consisting largely of photographs, a small amount of documents and printed material, and information relating to the former Principal, the Rev. Canon T Halliwell. This deposit has been added to the catalogue as sections eight, nine and ten.
